

TESTING AND STUDY SKILLS, FREE AP, SAT & ACT PREPARATION

www.studygs.net/

This is described as a great study skills and test taking skills web site.

www.uccp.org

Students may “enroll” in on-line courses, including an array of AP courses, free of charge. There are no exams, or course credit, but this would be an excellent option for a student who wishes to prepare for an AP exam without enrolling in the class at school, or to enhance preparation for a particular AP test. This is a University of California web site.

www.actstudent.org/onlineprep/index.html

American College Testing’s on-line ACT preparation course costs $19.95.

www.collegeboard.com/psatextra

Students who have taken the PSAT should register here, using the code on the PSAT Score Report, to access an electronic score report that allows them to review incorrectly answered test questions, and view answer explanations. A personalized SAT study plan is also available.

www.collegeboard.com/student/testing/sat/prep_one/prep_one.html

An SAT practice test is available on-line. You can enter your answers and receive a score report and skills assessment. Answer explanations are also available.

Advanced Placement policies of many colleges and universities can be obtained from this web site and its links to college web sites.

www.gocollege.com

GoCollege has a little bit of everything, including college and scholarship search engines. The site offers free, full length, on-line SAT and ACT practice tests.

www.number2.com

The better you do on Number2’s free SAT or ACT practice tests, the harder the questions become. If you get the answer wrong, the site will tell you why. It also offers strategies for each SAT section, and a vocabulary builder.

<http://ineedapencil.com/>

Free SAT prep developed by a current Harvard student, and recommended by an NHS graduate at Harvard. Give it a try and stop by the Career Center with your feedback.

www.studyhall.com

This site offers a free online SAT improvement program, using simulated SAT questions paired with explanations. The site claims to be getting great results with its interactive Critical Reading passages.

www.testu.com

TestU.com offers free test prep for the SAT, PSAT, and ACT. This program begins with a diagnostic exam and then a 60 hour SAT tutorial tailored to individual needs.

www.ePrep.com

This test prep site offers free videos with test-taking tips, featuring a veteran SAT tutor who is a Princeton University graduate.

www.grammatix.com

Students like this test prep site. Try out the free material before purchasing a course.

www.petersons.com/testprep

Peterson's offers reasonably priced on-line preparation for either the ACT or SAT.

www.fairtest.org/optinit.htm

Visit this site to access a listing of "SAT/ACT optional" colleges and universities.

www.zinch.com

Unhappy with your test scores? This new site allows students to create on-line profiles and upload evidence of talent (creative writing, sports videos, recordings, film clips, etc.) which can be viewed by colleges who pay to access the profiles. There is no charge to students who participate.
